The stock market Monday under the leadership of the grangers, and notably Burlington, gave promise of sustaining strength which was not borne out to the finish. There was no special pressure of foreign selling and in leading New York exchange circles the opinion was expressed that no gold would go out until Wednesday at the earliest. This stimulated fairly extensive covering in the general list. The demonstration in the grangers was based on the favorable showing of earnings of the St. Paul for the second week in November. recording a gain in gross of $288,159. With the exception of the Southwesterns, most of the companies reported an increase for the same period. In the first mentioned group the Missouri, Kansas & Texas exhibited a decrease in gross of $69,979 for the second week. The market opened listless and irregular, but the upward movement referred to soon started under way and sharp advances were scored by Sugar, Manhattan and New Jersey Central. The rise in the first named was in the face of reported reductions in foreign domestic grades of sugars. Soon after the expiration of the first hour an effective raid was made by the bear traders and stop orders were caught in a manner of instances. Special pressure was brought against Tobacco on rumors of an impending unfavorable legal decision and Manhattan was also hammered severely. The first broke 3% and the last mentioned 2%. and Reading. The selling movement practically ceased at midday, although for some little time thereafter Tobacco and Manhattan continued to sag. There were no important subsequent movements in prices until the last hour when, on the announcement of a decision by Justice Harlan, at Washington, adverse to the contract of the Western Union Telegraph Company with the Union Pacific railroad the stock of the former fell 2 per cent. on rather liberal sales. Rumors of sales of gold cables by houses recently prominent shippers of the precious metal, caused fractional recessions in the general market. The closing was steady. LOCAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE. Weather Checks Trade-Sugars Decline-Other Lines Steady.

On the wholesale streets and on Commission row trade yesterday was dull, such mild weather not being conducive to activity. Sugars dropped sharpty, while other groceries ruled steady. In dry goods no change has been made in the last three weeks. There is some inquiry for canned goods, but indications point to a light trade and low prices. Holiday goods are beginning to attract more attention, and the confectioners are quite busy. Hardware and iron merchants are fairly busy. Seed merchants report trade slow. On Commission row prices on fruits and vegetables, while on choice stock firmer, have not advanced the last few days materially. Hide and leather markets are slow. PROF. PARVIN'S EXPERIMENT. His Arm Gashed to Prove the Efficacy of an Anaesthetic.

Philadelphia Press. A startling demonstration of the efficacy of a weak solution of cocaine and morphine injected around the point of operations to allay pain in surgical operations was given by Prof. Theophilus Parvin at the last meeting of the Philadelphia County Medical Previous to the experiment the Professor stated that he believed that at least onehalf of the operations now carried on under the influence of ether or chloroform could be successfully carried out with the use of Professor Parvin beckoned to an assistant, who applied the anaesthetic, and with a scalpel cut an incision one inch long in the bared arm. He quickly stitched up the wound again. Professor Parvin did not move a muscle of his face, and apparently felt no pain. Subsequently he said that the method of applying the anaesthetic was to have the well cleaned according to the usual thods, then the surface of the skin is rendered insensible to the pain of a needle by a spray of ethyl chloride, and with a hypodermic syringe a number of injections are made into the deepest structures of a solution consisting of two parts of common salt, one thousand parts of water, onefourth of a part of morphia muriate and one part of cocaine. The insensibility of the tissues lasts for fifteen minutes. He said that the new method differs from the ordinary employment of hypodermic intection of cocaine. The strength of the drug which has been used in the past is about one part in each twenty-five parts of the

AND VAIN STRUGGLE TO RISE.

Shortly After the Opening the Marcrease in Visible Supply.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 .- Wheat made a struggle to advance this morning, but a three million-bushel increase in the visible and 5,000,000 bu exports for the week from Black sea ports proved too much for it, and it fell back to %c per bu under the price it closed at on Saturday. Corn, oats and provisions were very dull, and each closed slightly lower for the day.

Wheat soon after the opening began to droop. Trade was slow and narrow. Along toward noon brokers supposed to be acting for New York and St. Louis parties began selling freely, presumably in the way of liquidation. There came reports of heavy increase in the visible supply, and this aided the selling. The market was quiet during the last hour, but held steady, and trade was about featureless. December wheat closed at 57%c, or %c below the close Satur-

KING AND PRINCE RIVALS. Queen's Refusal to Be Set Aside May Mean War in Samoa.

San Francisco Chronicle.

An island romance, such as would delight Stevenson, comes from Apia, Samoa. The Taupou of Vaiala is the woman in the story. Such another heroine for a novel could not be found in all Samoa. A taupou is among Samoan women what a chief is among the men. All through her life she is carefully protected from temptation. A taupou may always be recognized, for wherever she goes attendants accompany her. These attendants are known as anualuma. Taupou is queen of the village, of such nobility as to be the wife of a chief, and is one of those few persons in Samoa entitled to wear the ula lei, or necklace of

The Taupou of Vaiala is the prettiest of Samoan womer. The village in which she of which the American consulate at Apia is located. Although born of Samoan no-bility she was educated by the missionaries, and reads, writes and speaks languages other than her own. She is described as cultured and accomplished. So in love was she with native customs and her native home that, after her education had been completed, she chose to forsake the European garments she had been taught to wear and to take up again the simple Soon the pretty girl forsook her English and her French and tried much more as-siduously to lead the siva or native dance than she had ever tried to learn stilted foreign accomplishments. This girl, well known to many island travelers as the belle of Samoa, has had the strange good fortune to be loved by the King of Samoa, Malietoa, and also by the rebel prince Tamasese, the prince, was the first of the rivals to make his love known to the girl. Things went so far that there was a proffer of marriage. He sent his "talking man" to meet her "talking woman" and to ex-press his desire. He sent pigs and mats and other presents, but, in accordance with the native custom, was not permitted to speak to the girl he loved in person. Tamasese was rejected, but continued to love the girl. To the horror of this rebel prince, and to make his hatred of the present government all the stronger, King Malietoa became enamored of the same beautiful taupou. The King, though, has an encumbrance, for he was married some years ago. There is a native custom that came in very handily in this emergency, however, for a Samoan chief of any rank is entitled to set aside his wife whenever he chooses and to take another. When King Malietoa attempted to se aside his wife a month ago he found difficulties in the way. What happened then is the talk of all the islands, and may, before the clouds clear away, cause another war. The Queen refused to be set aside. This emulation of Catherine of Aragon produced a sensation in Samoa. Nothing of the sort had been heard of before. The Queen, however, declared she had been married to the King by the missionaries and would not leave him. In case she was aside she threatened most direful King Malietoa, accompanied by his advisers, had gone so far as to pay visits by night to the mother of the Taupou of the Vaiala, but now the threatened vengeance of the Queen has stopped even this. The Queen and the lovely taupou do not speak as they pass by, and the King and rebel prince may meet in deadly combat before the romance is properly ended. Tamasese is the son of a man once declared king by the Germans, and his pretenses to the throne once before involved the country in war. Now he has another reason.

OUR NATIONAL DIETS. Food Has an Important Bearing Cpon a People's Characteristics. Demorest's Magazine.

It is a well-known fact that certain kinds of food affect a man mentally, morally and physically. Scotchmen aver that their out-meal "parritch" makes their men brave and brawny, their women blithesome and bonny and their whole nation pious. A professor of physiology declares that the inferiority of the Celts is owing to the universal use of the potato as a staple article of food, "No man," he affirms, "can live on potatoes and amount to anything." If the Irish are deficient in some things no one can deny that they are warmhearted, generous and pro-verbially witty; and if to the inherent virtue of the potato is due these qualities, then the potato is not to be despised as an article

The Englishman, through generations of roast beef eating, has absorbed many of the qualities of the viand he loves so well. He is stubborn, opinionated, self-assertive and a good fighter. His intellect, like his beer, is strong and heavy; sometimes, perhaps, a little bitter, and sometimes a little vapid, like a long-kept sample of his favorite bev-erage. The Chinese diet has been changeless for centuries, and so has their civilization. Not alone has the Chinese mind become stagnant through a monotonous diet, but possibly, we may attribute the beady eyes and the peculiar growth of the Chinese hair and its arrangement to a prolonged sub-sistence on the rodent. The French are noted for their nimble legs and their long tongues: can it be the result of much feasting on the agile frog? The Americans, having access to all the good things of the earth, ought to produce the most perfect people of any country; but even here the favorite dish leaves its traces on the devotees. Fish is a popular dish with New Yorkers: and does not the stream of humanity which flows up and down Broadway remind one of the restless dweilers in the ocean, that dart here and there alert, active, ready to seize anything that promises gain? The Philadelphian is tranquil, sober, mild, and so is the terrapin that he dotes upon.
